Tasting notes

A mid-weight Clos de la Roche with the masculinity and wildness that one expects in Morey St Denis but with the polish and refinement that shows that we are firmly in Grand Cru territory. On the palate, there is an initial creaminess but that soon gives way to heightened minerality and a fine, spicy finish with plenty of energy.

About the producer

Spending any time with Nicolas Potel in Burgundy can't help but to make even the most ardent of critics a lifelong convert. Nicolas is another man of boundless energy but his approach is very organic, adhering to the natural rhythms wherever possible. Such an unforced, careful, natural and sensitive approach is reflected perfectly in his wine and Nicolas has brought a breath of fresh air to Burgundy over the last decade and more. Quite simply, he remains one of Burgundy's brightest talents.
