Tasting notes

There is no better example of what pure liquid minerality tastes like than the 2009 Ermitage L'Ermitage Blanc. Tasting like a cocktail made of crushed granite intermixed with white flowers, citrus oil, pear and quince, this wine possesses majestic concentration, great acids, phenomenal purity and a finish that lasts over a minute. Like its two siblings, it is a compelling wine in every hedonistic and intellectual sense possible. It, too should last for 75-100 years.
