Reviews

The 2017 Echézeaux Grand Cru, which comes from the lieu-dit of En Orveaux and contains 80% whole bunches, has a well-defined bouquet of brine-tinged black fruit; touches of blood orange emerge with time. The palate is medium-bodied with supple tannin and a fine line of acidity, although I find it missing a little complexity on the finish. So-so. 89-91 Points, Neal Martin, Vinous Mid to deep crimson. Spicy and almost a touch exotic on the nose. And a sweetness of spice and dark red fruit. Chewy and creamy on the palate. Generous in fruit and light in structure but all making a whole. Pure and gentle but persistent. 16.5/20 Julia Harding, JancisRobinson.com
