

2018 Colle Vota

Agricola Tiberio, Abruzzo, Italy

Product details

Vintage:	2018	Drinking:	2020 2032
Producer:	Agricola Tiberio	Alcohol:
Region:	Abruzzo	Variety:	Trebbiano
Country:	Italy

Tasting notes

The 2018 Colle Vota is the first release since the 2014 vintage. A truly great red, Eric Guido of Vinous described the last release by asking “Is this Montepulciano or Grand Cru Burgundy – or maybe Chateau Rayas?” We found the comparison close to home with the 2018 vintage, which shows an earthy, spicy character and muscular frame that would not be out of place on the Chambertin hill. This wine is astonishing and could age for upwards of a decade.

About the producer

Located in the rugged Adriatic region of Abruzzo, Cristiana Tiberio’s 30 ha estate has fast gained a reputation for her unapologetic take on what the wines of her region should be. Working with very old Trebbiano Abruzzese vines and with the indigenous varieties of Montepulciano d’Abruzzo and Pecorino, she has made it her mission to craft wines that display real purity and elegance with a very distinct character. The focus here is on combining indigenous varieties and unique terroir with state-of-the-art winemaking. The result is some of the purest and long-lived wines in the region – a future Italian icon.

