Reviews

"For many years now, the Bosoni family has been offering a range of authentic wines of great balance and longevity. Even in the latest tastings the Etichetta Nera has stood out among the many whites tasted. This is a Vermentino that succeeds both in offering the most classic notes of the semi-aromatic vine, and in the freshness and flavour of the Colli di Luni. A true terroir wine in short, which in the 2018 version enchants for its aromatic intensity, balance and complexity. This is why for us it's the White of the Year."

Marco Sabellico, Gambero Rosso

About the producer

Nestled on the Ligurian border with Tuscany, near the remains of the ancient Roman city of Luni, Cantine Lunae has been pushing boundaries of Ligurian wines since Paolo Bosoni took the helm of the winery in 1966. His family's dedication to quality is helping to create incredibly vibrant and intense wines from local grape varieties which are a true distillate of their soils, Mediterranean climate and their respectful viticulture. From the mineral expression of Vermentino to spicy Albarola, there is plenty to discover and experiment with their range.
